Dear Dr. Kruzas:

I am pleased to forward the information you requested concerning the Intelligence Resources Advisory Committee. Because there have been some changes in various committees of the US Foreign Intelligence Community, I thought you might also find useful the additional information which I have supplied. The descriptions I am sending to you were taken from a statement which the Director of Central Intelligence, Mr. Colby, sent to the Commission on the Organization of the Government for the Conduct of Foreign Policy.

Your book promises to be of great interest -- especially to those of us in government.

Sincerely,

Daniel O. Graham
Major General, USA
Deputy to the DCI for the Intelligence Community

The current organization of the Intelligence Community is reflected in the President's directive of 5 November 1971. It called for the following:

- That the Director of Central Intelligence (DCI) provide leadership to all foreign intelligence activities of the United States Government.
- That there be established a National Security Council Intelligence Committee (NSCIC). * The purpose of the NSCIC is to give direction and guidance on national substantive intelligence needs and to provide for the continuing evaluation of intelligence products from the viewpoint of the intelligence consumer.
- That the Intelligence Resources Advisory Committee IRAC be formed.  This Committee is advisory to the DCI in his management role. It helps him develop the annual National Foreign Intelligence Program Budget Recommendations which are sent by the DCI to the President--Recommendations which may concern any of the foreign intelligence expenditures of the United States Government.

*Members are: The Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs (Chairman), the Under Secretary of State, the Deputy Secretary of Defense, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the DCI.

Members are: the DCI (Chairman), and one senior representative each from the Department of Defense, the Department of State, the Office of Management and Budget, and CIA.

- That the United States Intelligence Board (USIB)* be reconstituted to include a representative of the Secretary of the Treasury, and that it continue to advise and assist the DCI in his substantive leadership role with respect to the Intelligence Community.

Not addressed by that directive but continuing to operate is the so-called Forty Committee. This body provides policy guidance on activities related to intelligence affecting the national security, as directed by the National Security Council.

*Members are: The DCI (Chairman); the DDCI; the Director of the Bureau of Intelligence and Research, State Department; the Director of the National Security Agency (NSA); the Director of the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA); representatives of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Members are: The Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs (Chairman), the Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs, the Deputy Secretary of Defense, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the DCI.

Remarks: Per our telephone conversation today, here is the request for information about the Intelligence Resources Advisory Committee with two possible transmittal letters. This probably was misdirected to IC Staff. I'd like to know what you do with it, however.
